

Energy storage cabinet go overseas

Overview

Which countries have a high energy storage capacity?

Large-scale energy base projects in the Middle East and North Africa impose higher thresholds for long-duration energy storage, system integration capabilities, and project-level reliability. China holds significant advantages in energy storage manufacturing capacity, industrial clustering, and supply chain completeness.

Are Chinese energy storage companies 'born global'?

Tian Qingjun highlighted that Chinese energy storage companies are “born global,” and internationalization has become an imperative. He stressed the need to move from simply “going out” to deeply “integrating in,” with local operations, local talent, and long-term value creation.

Is the energy storage industry in a golden period?

President Huang Feng noted that the industry faces both fierce competition and supply shortfalls, yet remains in a golden period of rapid growth. He forecasted global energy storage installations reaching 550-600 GWh in 2025, with overseas markets surpassing China for the first time.

Why is Germany a hotbed of battery energy storage project announcements & deal-making?

Germany has this year become a hotbed of battery energy storage system (BESS) project announcements and deal-making, driven by its substantial revenue opportunities as Europe’s largest electricity market and a looming August 2029 deadline for getting projects operational to avoid charge-discharge grid fees.
