Overview

A photovoltaic system is being built on the areas where ash from the two coal-fired power plants at Kosovo A was previously deposited. It will have an installed capacity of up to 100 MW and produce 152 GWh of electricity annually.

As a potential European Union (EU) candidate and an Energy Community (EnCT) Contracting Party, Kosovo is embracing the climate and energy priorities of the union, aligning itself with the ultimate climate-neutral ambition by 2050. On the path to climate neutrality, Kosovo has specific milestones.

Unisolar has successfully completed a landmark 7.4 MW solar project in Kosovo, marking a significant milestone in the nation's ongoing transition toward renewable energy. This initiative includes the installation of the first 2.4 MW at Trepça, a historic mining complex, and is a critical step.

Kosovo's energy system is managed primarily by KOSTT (Kosovo Transmission System Operator) and KEDS (Kosovo Electricity Distribution and Supply Company). Solar energy provides an important path toward grid stability and sustainability. Solar energy is gaining momentum as both a cost-saving and.

On behalf of the German Federal Government, KfW is supporting the construction of a large photovoltaic system with an installed capacity of up to 100 MW to promote decarbonisation. It will contribute to significantly reducing greenhouse gas emissions and pave the way for further investment. The.

The Republic of Kosovo, and its 1.8 million inhabitants, is heavily reliant on two highly pollutive lignite coal-fired power plants, Kosova A and Kosova B for energy generation. The coal-fired power plants, that cover 91% of the energy generation, are reaching the end of their operational life and.
